I. Guides to the State of the Field

The late Etienne Balazs began formulating plans for an international, collaborative study of the Sung period as early as 1949 and formally initiated the "Sung Project" in 1954. The Project was responsible for some of the most valuable reference tools in this guide. Its history is related in:

I.A. SOCIETIES, NEWSLETTERS, AND JOURNALS

Societies

Japan:

Sōdaishi kenkyūkai 宋代史研究会 (Society for Song Studies):
<http://home.hiroshima-u.ac.jp/songdai/songdaishi-yanjiuhui.htm>

This site contains announcements for and reports on the annual meetings of the society, links to related sites, a bibliography of Japanese scholarship on Song studies (1982-2002) and a directory of Japanese scholars working in the field.

Sōdaishi danwakai 宋代史談話會 (Society for the Study of Song History in Japan)
<http://www2u.biglobe.ne.jp/~songsong/songdai/danwakai.html>

Established in 1997 as a forum and reading group for young scholars of Song history active in Kyoto-Osaka-Kobe region. Includes meeting information, list of readings, and an announcement board.

Sōdai shibun kenkyūkai 宋代詩文研究會 (Society for the Study of Song Literature)
<http://www9.big.or.jp/~co-ume/song/>
<http://www9.big.or.jp/~co-ume/song/danwakai.htm>

Includes announcements and a mailing list. Registration is required to get access to the full site.

Sōshi kenkyūkai 宋詞研究會 (Society for the Study of Song ci)
<http://www.res.otaru-uc.ac.jp/~hagiwara/scyjh.html>

Includes annual meeting reports, a bibliography of Japanese research on ci, the table of contents of the association's periodical Fūjo 風絮 (2005-) and links to sites of interest.

Sōdai sekkoku no kai 宋代石刻の會 (Song Dynasty Inscriptions Society)
<http://home.hiroshima-u.ac.jp/moka/inscription.htm>

Based at Hiroshima University, this is a group meeting regularly to read and discuss Song epigraphical texts.

Taiwan:

Song shi zuotanhui 宋史座談會 (Symposium on Song History):

<http://www.ihp.sinica.edu.tw/%7Etw sung/activity/c.htm>

These pages provide an overview of the meetings held by the group and are part of the larger online index of resources useful to Song scholars, titled Taiwan Song shi yanjiu wang 臺灣宋史研究網 (Song History Research Net in Taiwan), <http://www.ihp.sinica.edu.tw/~tw sung/> managed now by Yang Shihong 楊士弘 and previously by Liu Liyan (Lau Nap-Yin) 柳立言. This latter site provides access to bibliographies of Taiwanese M.A. and Ph.D. theses and research written by affiliates of Academia Sinica in Song studies, directories of individuals and institutions, an overview of major journals and sites in the US, PRC, Japan, Korea and Taiwan, and maintains a list of electronic resources both proprietary and non-proprietary. The latter list is not annotated.

Songdai shiliao yanduhui 宋代史料研讀會 (Song Texts Reading Group)

<http://www.ihp.sinica.edu.tw/~tw sung/song/index.htm>

This group meets regularly to discuss various types of Song historical materials. Meetings, topics, and materials are posted on the site.

USA:

The Society for Song, Yuan, and Conquest Dynasties Studies:

<http://www.humanities.uci.edu/eastasian/SungYuan/>

This site lists news and announcements, tables of contents of the journal produced by the society (see below) and it indexes links of interest to Song scholars. Those interested in subscribing to the society's listserv can find instructions on the main page. There are no archives for this listserv.

Korea:

宋遼金元史研究會

PRC:

Zhongguo Song shi yanjiuhui 中國宋史研究會 (The Chinese Society of Song History):

<http://www.songdai.com>

This site contains news and announcements on meetings and new publications, publishes secondary research and bookreviews, provides links to Song primary sources and other resources, and maintains online communication tools.

Zhongguo Songdai wenxuehui 中國宋代文學會 (The Chinese Society for Song Literature)

Organizes national and international meetings on Song literature.

Zhongguo Su Shi yanjiuhui 中國蘇軾研究會 (The Chinese Su Shi Society)

Organizes regular meetings on Su Shi.

Blogs

Tang Song shi yanjiu 唐宋史研究 (Research on Tang and Song History)
<http://blog.hexun.com/tangsong/default.aspx> (previously <http://tangsong.blogchina.com>)
Geng Yuanli 耿元骊

This blog includes articles on topics related to Tang through Song socio-economic, political and cultural history, bibliography, and electronic tools. It lists links to libraries and databases, and institutions specializing in Tang-Song history. Both the blog and the (very small) image database are fully searchable.

I.B.3. Scholarship in Japan and Korea

Japan

For a review of major achievements and topics in Japanese Sung studies in the postwar period, see:

(W) DS12.A45
 LoC: DS12 .A45
 "Trends in Postwar Japanese Studies on Sung History: A Bibliographic Introduction"
 Hasegawa Yoshio.
Acta Asiatica 50 (1986): 95-120.

Of particular interest for its account of the history of Japanese Sung studies and the emergence of intellectual divisions among Japanese historians with regard to the Naitō hypothesis and the study of economic and social history, is:

J2451/5657
 "Nihon ni okeru Sōdaishi kenkyū no kichō"

(See below for Chinese translation.)

An earlier version of this article includes a useful bibliography:

Sung-shih yen-chiu t'ung-hsun 4 (1985): 17-22.

Reviews and updates on scholarship on Song cultural history in Japan and Korea appear in the annual periodical:

C2665 6247 Songdai wenhua yanjiu
宋代文化研究
(Research on Song Culture).
Sichuan daxue Songdai wenhua yanjiu ziliao zhongxin 四川大学宋代文化研究 資料中心, ed.
Chengdu: Sichuan da xue chu ban she, 1990-

6 (1996):315-332 Teraji Jun 寺地遵 (see above) Wang Xiaobo 王曉波

Of great value is the annual review of the previous year's historical scholarship on Five Dynasties, Sung, and Yuan in Japan, usually appearing in Number 5 of each volume of:

Beijing: Renmin, 2004. 603 p.

This is a very comprehensive study of Chinese reactions to the reforms, covering interpretations from the Southern Song period up to the late twentieth century. For the latter period, the author focuses on research trends in the People's Republic of China and Taiwan, but he includes a bibliography of publications through 2000 in Chinese, Japanese, and European languages. The coverage of the latter is incomplete.

I.C. INTRODUCTIONS TO THE STUDY OF SUNG HISTORY

The three Japanese studies listed below are essential introductions to the primary sources, references tools, and major secondary works for the study of Sung history.

Sudō Yoshiyuki's 周藤吉之 essay on the Five Dynasties and Sung periods in:

(J) D9.S38 LoC: DS803 .S4 Japan	Sekai rekishi jiten 世界歴史辭典 (Encyclopedia of world history). Vol. 23. Tokyo: Heibonsha, 1955, pp. 184-204.
------------------------------------	--

Chikusa Masaaki 竺沙雅章 wrote the chapter on sources for Song studies in the following volume:

J2412/1317 LoC: DS32.5 .A44 1983 Japan	Ajia rekishi kenkyū nyūmon, 1: Chūgoku アジア歴史研究入門：中國 (Introduction to the study of Asian history, 1: China). Kyoto: Dōhōsha, 1983, pp. 227-268.
---	--

An English translation of this essay, by Kenneth Chase, was published in the second edition of Research Tools for the Study of Sung History (Albany, NY: Journal of Sung-Yuan Studies, 1996).

Of particular value for social and economic history are Yanagida Setsuko's 柳田節子 and Ihara Hiroshi's 伊原弘 essays on the sources for Sung history and Chinese and Japanese studies, in J2518/2445	Chūgokushi kenkyū nyūmon 中國史研究入門 (Introduction to the study of Chinese history). Yamane Yukio 山根幸夫 ed. Vol. I. Tokyo: Yamakawa shuppansha, 1984, pp. 423-570.

------------	---

The following guide is modeled on the work edited by Yamane. It includes Chinese translations of the relevant chapters in that work, and supplements critical reviews of scholarship produced in Taiwan and Hong Kong between roughly 1950 and 1985.

Ref(C) DS735.C543 1990x	Chung-kuo-shih yen-chiu chih-nan 3: Sung-shih Liao Chin Yuan shih 中國史研究指南，3：宋史遼金元史 (Guide to the study of Chinese history 3: Sung history and Liao, Chin, and Yuan history). Kao Ming-shih 高明士 ed. and trans. Taipei: Lien-ching ch'u-pan-she, 1990. 302p.

Also note Hasegawa's account of postwar Japanese Sung studies:

(W) DS12.A45 LoC: DS12 .A45	"Trends in Postwar Japanese Studies on Sung History: A Bibliographic Introduction." Hasegawa Yoshio. Acta Asiatica 50 (1986): 95-120, which cites the major reference works compiled by Japanese scholars and their studies of the examination and school system, bureaucratic system, and shih-ta-fu class.

Chūgoku rekishi kenkyū nyūmon
中國歷史研究入門
(Introduction to the Study of Chinese History)
Tonami Mamoru 磯波護 et al.
Nagoya: Nagoya daigaku shuppankai 名古屋大學出版會, 2006. pp. 127-157, 396-408.

This edited volume contains a chapter introducing the most important secondary scholarship and the main historical resources for research in Five Dynasties and Song China. The focus is on Japanese research, but the compilers also include references to modern Chinese editions and reference works. There is a bibliography in the back. Apart from the main chronological chapters, there are also three separate sections on catalogs, epigraphy, and geography.

The multi-volume series on Chu Hsi school Neo-Confucianism, the Shushigaku taikai includes a one-volume introduction to the sources for Chu Hsi studies:

J1237/2174
LoC: B128.C54 S54 Japan
Shushigaku nyūmon
朱子學入門
(Introduction to Chu Hsi Confucianism).
Shushigaku taikai 朱子學大系 Vol. I.
Tokyo: Meitoku shuppansha, 1974.

Finally, note Fang Hao's discussion of 60 important primary sources:

9401/5621
LoC: Z3103 .S59 (Orien China)
"Yen-chiu Sung shih ts'an-k'ao shu-chi chū-yao" and the discussion of several major primary sources in the bibliography of

(W)JQ 1512.K7
LoC: JQ1512 .K7
Civil Service in Early Sung China, 960-1067.
E. A. Kracke, Jr.
Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1953, pp. 237-249.

For a recent introduction to major primary sources and reference tools, see:

(C) 2665/3513
"Songshi yanjiu ji qi gongju shu"
宋史研究及其工具書
(Research in Song History and Reference Materials for It).
Wang Deyi 王德毅
Songshi yanjiu ji 33 (2003):469-495.

This article was originally published in 1989, but went through an update in 2003. The first part reviews major sources in Song history such as Song shi, Song huiyao, Sanchao Bei Meng huibian, Jianyan yilai xinian yao lu etc. and lists research tools prepared for each of them. The list is somewhat outdated.

The second part lists research tools in Song history of broader scope. Only print materials are discussed; new electronic resources are not included.

The following article lists the major general histories of the Song period written in China and Taiwan. Even though it focuses on Zhang Qifan's Songdai shi, it also serves as a brief introduction to changing approaches in the writing of general Song histories:

Lun duandai Song shi de zhushu--yi "Songdai shi" wei kaocha zhongxin

Xiao Jianxin 肖建新
Anhui shifan daxue xuebao (renwen shehui kexue ban) 安徽師範大學學報(人文社會科學版) 34.1 (2006): 14-19.

Take note of the following excellent introduction to Yuan studies:

LoC: DS752 .L513 1989 China
Yuan-shih hsueh kai-shuo

Li Chih-an 李治安 and Wang Hsiao-hsin 王曉欣 eds.
T'ien-chin: T'ien-chin chiao-yü ch'u-pan she, 1989.

This reviews Yuan historical studies, abstracts scholarship in many different fields, and introduces primary sources, reference works, and research tools. There are indexes to secondary scholarship in Chinese, Japanese, Russian, and European languages.

II. Bibliographies and Abstracts of Recent Scholarship

For multilingual bibliographies, see:

III. Bibliographies and Abstracts of Sung-Period Sources

The most informative guide to Sung-period texts of all sorts is

LoC: Z3102 .S77
- A Sung Bibliography/Bibliographie des Sung.*
Etienne Balazs and Yves Hervouet ed.
Hong Kong: Chinese University Press, 1978. 598 p.

This selective, classified bibliography includes often detailed discussions of the contents of the works cited. There are separate indexes for book titles, authors, and subjects. For brief abstracts of some Sung-period texts, see:

- B9450/2341
- Chien-ming Chung-kuo ku-chi tz'u-tien

東北師範大學古籍整理研究所 comp.
Ch'ang-ch'un: Chi-lin wen-shih ch'u-pan-she, 1987. 1124 p.

This work, including 4900 titles from antiquity to 1911, is said to be the precursor of a projected Chung-kuo ku wen-hsien ta-tz'u-tien 中國古文獻大辭典 with 35,000 titles.

Note that works under I.C. Introductions to the Study of Sung History also introduce selected Sung-period texts.

III.A. MODERN COMPREHENSIVE BIBLIOGRAPHIES

The most comprehensive, but not yet complete, bibliography of extant Song Dynasty titles is

- Ref(C) Z3102 .L57 1995x Xiancun Song ren zhushu zonglu
現存宋人著述總錄
(Comprehensive Index of Extant Works by Song Persons)
Liu Lin 劉琳 and Shen Zhihong 沈治宏
Chengdu: Ba Shu shushe, 1995. 12, 530 p.

This union catalog includes titles preserved in major libraries in the PRC, Taiwan, Japan and the US. It also includes titles in the Daoist canon (Daozang), the Buddhist canon (Fozang) and Zhongguo congshu zonglu (Shanghai: Shanghai guji chubanshe, 1986). The list of individual literary collections by Shen Zhihong (III.B.1.a.) is included. For this part, and for the most part, only major editions are listed. New editions not included in Shen Zhihong's work are added.

This index contains 4855 titles; those with authors amount to 2370. In the compilers' estimate, Zhongguo congshu zonglu contains over 3000 Song titles, but leaves out over 1300 titles. It also does not list the wide variety of editions included here. The bibliography is organized by subject, according to the traditional sibu classification system supplemented with a category for congshu. Within each subdivision titles are organized more or less chronologically according to the dates of the author.

Titles that were re-issued in Song times are listed separately. Later editions appear under the main titles. Editions are listed as follows: 1) individual editions; 2) congshu; 3) post-1911 editions. Each entry lists holding institution (not for common titles), and the title for the series (when not noted in Zhongguo congshu zonglu). There is a table of the number of extant titles for each subject division in front. There is an author and title index.

The following lists the Sung texts found in the Chung-kuo ts'ung-shu tsung-lu 中國叢書綜錄 (Catalogue of Chinese collectanea), 3 vols. (Shanghai, 1959-1962; rpt. Shang-hai ku-chi, 1982). Arranged by the romanized name of the author, it includes titles of works, bibliographic category, number of chüan, and editions. There is also an index by romanized book titles. This work lists 4500 titles, including variant titles, by 1664 authors.

LoC: Z1033.S5 M33 China Brian E. McKnight, comp.
San Francisco: Chinese Materials Center, 1977. 373 p.

Two bibliographies of extant Sung writings include some works not found in the McKnight index. The following series lists 3968 titles, including rare editions and works not listed in the Ts'ung-shu tsung-lu. Entries are arranged according to the traditional four-division classification system.

The table of contents gives the classification scheme. There is no index. Within each category entries appear in approximate chronological order.

The catalogue of writings by Szechwanese includes titles of the individuals' works as well as pieces found only in anthologies. Moreover, it collects references to lost writings. It is arranged by place but includes an author and title index:

The preceding is a collection of all literary prose arranged by author in chronological order. An author's compositions are grouped into 16 categories (辭賦、詔令、奏議、公牘、書啟、贈序、序跋、論說、雜記、箴銘、頌讚、傳狀、碑誌、哀祭、祈謝、其他).

A complete table of contents, author index, title index and name index is forthcoming. 150 volumes were projected. Publication with Ba Shu shushe was halted after 50 volumes.

A table of contents for the fifty volumes published to date can be downloaded from Taiwan Song shi yanjiu wang 臺灣宋史研究網 (Song History Research Net in Taiwan) at <http://www.ihp.sinica.edu.tw/~twsung/qsw.xls>

In 2003 Shanghai cishu chubanshe took over the publication of the collection of all Song texts. It contains the work of over 9000 authors in 360 volumes.

(Complete Sung-dynasty Poetry).
Pei-ching ta-hsueh Ku-wen-hsien yen-chiu-so 北京大學古文獻研究所 comp.
Peking: Hsin-hua shu-tien, 1991-

A collection of all Sung poetry, arranged by author in chronological order. Neither Five Dynasties and Ten Kingdoms rulers nor Liao and Chin authors are included. A complete table of contents, author index, and title index will be appended.

- (C) DS751 .Q333 2003x      Quan Song biji
 全宋筆記
 Zhu Yian 朱易安, Fu Xuanzong 傅璇琮, eds.
 Zhengzhou: Da xiang chubanshe, 2003-

This is an ongoing project managed by Shanghai shifan daxue guji yanjiusuo. About 500 items are planned. This makes this compilation much more complete than previous series such as Shanghai guji chubanshe's Song Yuan biji congshu 宋元筆記叢書, Song Yuan biji xiaoshuo da guan 宋元筆記小說大觀 and Zhonghua shuju's Tang Song shiliao biji congkan 唐宋史料筆記叢刊. The latter, for example, includes over 40 items. Similar projects for the Tang and Five Dynasties are being undertaken by Hunan keji daxue (formerly Xiangtan shifan xueyuan).

The selection is based on the following criteria: 1) the title has to contain miscellaneous contents; 2) notes focused on one area (yulu, shihua, pu, guanzhen, mingchen yanxing lu, etc.) are not included; 3) anthologies of Song biji are not included (e.g., Lei yuan, Lei shuo, Songbai lei chao, Song ren yishi huibian). If the text only survives in part, emendations are made based on other texts (with references to the sources). The selection is limited to Song authors; Liao, Xia and Jin authors are not included. The titles are arranged chronologically, with some modifications for editorial purposes. Each item is preceded by a brief introductory essay including a biography of the author (if not included in The Song Dynastic History), an abstract of the text and a history of its editions. Corrections and annotations to the text are only summarily noted. Annotations are conveniently placed in the top margin.

Reconstructed Collections of Fragments

- Songdai yizhu ji kao*
 宋代佚著輯考
 (Lost Titles from the Song Dynasty Recollected and Investigated)
 Wang He 王河
 Nanchang: Jiangxi renmin, 2004.

The compiler reconstructs 28 titles by collecting passages from extant titles. The focus of the collection is on works and authors related to the Jiangxi region. For each entry there is an introductory part with brief comments on author, title and editions, followed by a collection of fragments. Sources of the fragments are given.

 Ch'eng-tu: Pa-Shu shu-she 巴蜀書社 1990. 430p.

This covers the holdings of 250 PRC libraries, 32 Japanese libraries, the Library of Congress and 521 ts'ung-shu 叢書. It includes collections of 739 Sung authors (of which 107 are collections of tz'u lyrics). Arranged chronologically by author. There are four-corner indexes to the ts'ung-shu, libraries and their locations, and authors. (see also Xiancun Song ren zhushu zonglu discussed in the previous section III.A.)

Titles and editions are organized chronologically by author. Congshu editions are placed after individually circulating editions.

Includes references to author biographies after the list of editions of their work.

There is an author index. The index is in vol. 8 and is a combined index for Song and Yuan works. It is organized by stroke order.

For a meticulously annotated study of editions of extant Song literary collections, see

- (C) Z1029 .Z48 1999x      Song ren bieji xu lu
 宋人別集叙錄
 (Bibliographic Survey of Collected Works of Song Authors)
 Zhu Shangshu 祝尚書
 Beijing: Zhonghua shuju, 1999. 2 vols.

This bibliography covers 541 collected works of poetry and prose and individual collections of memorials out of an estimated 800 extant collections. The latter number includes collections of ci poems (ciji) and works collected in more general collections which are not discussed here. Ciji are not listed because they are covered in Rao Zongyi's 饒宗頤 Ciji kao: Tang, Wudai, Song, Jin, Yuan bian 詞集考：唐五代宋金元編 (Beijing: Zhonghua shuju, 1992). This work is intended to be a critical evaluation of the pros and cons of major editions. It therefore only includes original and major editions, not all. Editions published after the Qianlong reign, editions that have been demonstrated to be false attributions, and those reconstructed from very limited remnants are also excluded.

In the reference materials section of each entry, postfaces and prefaces as well as entries from catalogs are listed. The list in this edition is not comprehensive. The author aims to publish those bibliographical materials that were not included separately in a volume, titled, "Song ji xu ba huibian" (Song ren zongji xu lu (see below), preface, p. 5).

The main title entries are arranged chronologically by the author's year of birth. Titles in the reference section are arranged chronologically by the year of publication.

There is a name and title index at the end of volume 2. The index is according to the four corners system, but there is a stroke order finding aid arranged by first character.

Wang Lan 王岚

Nanjing: Jiangsu guji chubanshe, 2003.

This is study of Song editions and later reprints of the collected works of 32 Song men. The emphasis is on Northern Song literary figures. The Northern Song men included are: Xu Xuan 徐铉, Zhang Yong 张詠, Liu Kai 柳開, Wang Yucheng 王禹偁, Lin Bu 林逋, Fan Zhongyan 范仲淹, Mu Xiu 穆修, Yin Shu 尹洙, Mei Yaochen 梅堯臣, Shi Jie 石介, Ouyang Xiu 歐陽修, Su Qinshun 蘇舜欽, Li Gou 李覲, Su Xun 蘇洵, Wen Tong 文同, Sima Guang 司馬光, Wang Anshi 王安石, Shen Gou 沈遘, Shen Kua 蘇轍, Shen Liao 沈遼, Kong Wenzhong 孔文仲, Kong Wuzhong 孔武仲, Kong Pingzhong 孔平仲, Su Che 蘇轍, Huang Tingjian 黃庭堅, Qin Guan 秦觀, Chen Shidao 陳師道, Chao Buzhi 晁補之, Tang Geng 唐庚, Su Guo 蘇過. Zhou Zizhi 周紫芝 lived during the Northern-Song Southern-Song divide; Dai Fugu 戴復古 is the only Southern Song author included.

The introduction gives a brief overview of the different methods of compilation used in Song collected works. It also reviews the scanty scholarship on editions and re-editions of Song collected works.

宋人總集敘錄

(Bibliographical Survey of Anthologies of Song Authors)

Zhu Shangshu 祝尚書

Beijing: Zhonghua shuju, 2004. 4, 6, 4, 651, 31 p.

This meticulously annotated bibliography includes all extant zongji that include work by Song authors and were compiled by Song authors. This implies that compilations by Song authors not including Song works are not included. Later compilations of Song authors are also not included. Complete as well as partial copies are listed. Anthologies are defined as anthologies of poetry, prose and combined prose-poetry. Those of memorials and decrees are considered prose anthologies in accordance with Song practice. The author has counted over 300 titles mentioned in catalogs, but only 80 survive and are discussed in this bibliography. The entries are arranged chronologically.

The main differences between this volume and Zhu Shangshu's work on bieji discussed above are: a) This title includes references to all prefaces and postfaces for each title (those cited in the main text are not listed again at the end). b) It includes two appendices: a list of zongji no longer extant and a list of libraries holding the titles described. Appendix one only includes those works for which descriptions are extant. Those for which only the title is known are not listed. Appendix two lists locations in China and abroad. The author refers to Zhongguo congshu zonglu for references to most congshu.

The index in the back includes title names, the names of compilers and annotators mentioned in the main text and in appendix one; the titles in appendix two; the names of authors of prefaces and postfaces.

Historical works correcting and supplementing The Song Dynastic History are gathered in the following collection:

 (A Collection of Texts Correcting and Supplementing the Song, Liao, Jin and Yuan Dynastic Histories)
 Xu Shu 徐蜀, ed.
 Beijing: Beijing tushuguan chubanshe, 2004. 3 vols.

This title is part of the series Correcting and Supplementing the Twenty-Five Dynastic Histories (Ershiwu shi dingbu 二十五史訂補), which includes about 160 titles in total. The first volume includes two additions to The Song Dynastic History and is thus of limited use. The series is intended to be used in addition to Supplementing the Twenty-Five Dynastic Histories (Ershiwushi bubian 二十五史補編) published by Kaiming shudian (Shanghai) in 1935 and reprinted by Zhonghua shuju (Beijing) in 1956 and 1986. It only includes titles published before 1949 and does not include those already covered in the aforementioned collection.

III.C. SUNG-PERIOD BIBLIOGRAPHIES

1) The most comprehensive extant bibliography compiled in Yuan, although based on Sung-period historiography, is the "Treatise on Bibliography" (I-wen chih) in the Sung shih/Sung History. This, later supplements, and other Sung bibliographies of government holdings have been issued in a single volume, with a single author/title index, arranged according to the four-corner system. Note that bibliographies compiled in Sung included pre-Sung works in government libraries.

This title was compiled over a fifty-year period. Chen Lesu started working on it in earnest in 1941. His son, Chen Zhichao, edited it into its final form. It consists of three parts. In Part One, the main part, all entries in "The Bibliographical Survey" are read against entries on the same titles in other Song materials. This part allows user to check the accuracy of any title listed in the survey. Part Two is a descriptive list of types of errors in the survey, each illustrated with examples. Part Three consists of miscellaneous research notes.

III.D. SUNG EDITIONS AND INSCRIPTIONS

Catalogs, Bibliographies and Colophons

(C) Z240.4.S664 2003x              Song Yuan ban shumu tiba jikan

宋元版書目題跋輯刊
 (Collection of Catalogs and Colophons of Song and Yuan Editions)
 Jia Guirong 賈貴榮 and Wang Guan 王冠, eds.
 Beijing: Beijing tushuguan chubanshe, 2003. 4 vols.

This collection conveniently reproduces catalogs or sections of catalogs listing Song and Yuan editions. Around thirty titles, mostly dating from Qing times, are included. There is an index by stroke order and pinyin. Titles are listed under the original title only. This means that readers have to search a text under all variant titles to find all relevant editions.

The following is described by the Harvard-Yenching Library as "An index to descriptive notices of Chinese rare editions, appearing in 102 public and private library catalogs, collections of colophons and reading notes, and other bibliographical sources, which appeared from the Sung dynasty to the 1960s. The main body of the work comprises four-corner indices to the titles and authors of the rare books described. Stroke-count and pinyin indices to first characters are added for convenience. At the front of the volume is a list of the 102 sources (9 of them Japanese) with full bibliographical information. "

Reproductions

Twenty-one titles from the Kunaichō Shoryōbu collection of fifty-five Song titles have been exquisitely reproduced in the series:

(Rare Editions of Song Collected Works Series)
Sichuan daxue guji zhengli yanjiusuo 四川大學古籍整理研究所

108 vols.

This is another outgrowth of the Quan Song wen project conducted by Sichuan daxue guji zhengli yanjiusuo. It is also part of a new large project, the Confucian Canon (Ru zang), this institution has embarked upon. This series contains 405 titles in over 10,000 juan. The vast majority of the volumes (through vol. 91) contain reproductions of individual literary collections of the work of Song authors (wenji); the remaining volumes (through vol. 107) are devoted to a selection of literary anthologies (zongji). The following selection criteria were used in identifying suitable editions: 1) Song and Yuan editions are generally included; 2) Ming and Qing editions are included if there are no earlier editions, if earlier editions are incomplete or if they have a different genealogy than extant earlier editions. 3) Post-Yuan editions are also included if they have been carefully collated or annotated. 4) Those reproduced in other reproduction series such as Sibu congkan (see VI.F) and Beijing tushuguan suocang zhenben congkan are excluded.

The last volume contains abstracts of all titles included. Each abstract traces the title's publication history, as well as its collection history (seals of ownership of particular copies as well as entries of editions in catalogs). It also gives a summary biography of the author and describes the contents. As in the Siku quanshu an individual title's abstract is also reproduced in its front pages.

The original copies have been scanned, enhanced, and fitted to a standard size. The original fonts and pagination have been preserved, but in the middle columns title, series title, and juan/page information has been electronically inserted.

Volume 108 contains indexes of titles and authors by stroke order.

 宋元版刻图释
 (Illustrations and Explanations of Song through Yuan Woodblock Prints)
 Chen Jian 陈坚 and Ma Wenda 马文大
 Beijing: Xueyuan chubanshe, 2000. 4 vols.

This title includes reprints of the first page of the first chapter of over 660 Song printed titles and around 100 Song and Yuan woodblock illustrations. It also includes 55 titles from Xi Xia, Liao and Jin times and over 370 Yuan titles. Titles are organized by period and then by type of printer: government, family, and commercial printshops. Titles are also subdivided by region.

For each title there is a brief description listing bibliographic details including place and time of publication. Time references include dates converted to the western calendar.

 Beijing: Beijing tushuguan chubanshe, 2003.
 4 vols.

This set contains reproductions of over 3000 inscriptions collected from around 100 compilations. Items were cut when reproduced elsewhere, when they did not contain the full text or when the text was deficient as to be incomprehensible. The compilers allege that only a small number has been left out this way. The layout of the original compilation is preserved, but page numbers were removed. There is a table of contents and an index of titles by stroke order. The usefulness of this collection is limited. It is in clear need of chronological, geographical, institutional or thematic indexes.

Rubbings of 1300 Sung inscriptions are reproduced in:

So far the volumes for Henan (118 Song inscriptions), Shaanxi (13), Chongqing and environs (39), and Beijing (0) have been published. This series focuses on funerary inscriptions that have never been published before; those included in previous collections or circulating as rubbings are not included. Each volume includes a plate of each rubbing, a bibliographical description and the transcribed text. (The editorial policies require reproductions of the original steles, but those do not appear in the volumes published so far.) The volumes are either arranged by dynasty with place indexes at the end, or by place with a chronological index at the end. An index of all personal names mentioned in the inscriptions is also prescribed for all volumes according to the editorial policies.

V. Biographical Dictionaries and Indexes to Biographical Information

V.A. BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARIES

Biographies of Sung figures will be found in historical encyclopedias listed in Section IV. There is one biographical dictionary for the Sung period:

Ref(W) DS751.5.S96      Sung Biographies.
 LoC: DS751.5 .S96      Herbert Franke, ed.
    Wiesbaden: Steiner, 1976.

Vols. 1-3 contain 406 biographies, prepared by various scholars; Vol. 4 contains 35 biographies of painters. There is no index; there is a table of contents. Biographies are in alphabetical order.

For Song authors, see:

V.B. INDEXES TO COMPREHENSIVE BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

Various Sung-period biographical collections, later sources with biographies of Sung figures, and various forms of biographical information found in Sung literary collections are indexed by the following work, the most comprehensive and detailed index to documents with biographical information. Entries include brief accounts of the individual's career and reputation.

R2259.5/3820
Sung-jen chuan-chi tzu-liao so-yin

LoC: DS751.5 .S97 (Orien China) 宋人傳記資料索引
(Index to biographical materials on Sung figures).

and Hou Chün-te 侯俊德 comp.
Taipei: Ting-wen, 1974-1976. 6 volumes.
McMullen #281.

Note that there is a digital version of this edition included in Scripta Sinica (see VI.F). It can be browsed and searched full-text.

Emendations to the Sung-jen chuan-chi tzu-liao so-yin have also been published:

2451/8297.1 "Sung-jen chuan-chi tzu-liao so-yin pu-cheng".
LoC: HN671.S534 Orien China 宋人傳記資料索引補正
(Supplement to the Index of biographical materials on Sung figures).
P'an Po-ch'eng 潘柏澄
Shih-huo yueh-k'an 食貨月刊 4.6 (1974): 254-263.

The Sung-jen chuan-chi tzu-liao so-yin is arranged by stroke count. Volume 6 indexes the entire work according to tzu 字 names, hao 號 names, posthumous names, etc. It is particularly valuable for its references to the various "records," "prefaces," documents of appointment, and so on, in literary collections. However, neither letters nor poems, for example, are indexed.

Of great importance is the three-volume "Supplement" to the Sung-jen chuan-chi tzu-liao so-yin, prepared in conjunction with the Ch'üan Sung wen project:

LoC: DS751 .L47 1994 China Sung-jen chuan-chi tzu-liao so-yin pu-pien
宋人傳記資料索引補編 (Supplement to the Index to biographical materials on Sung
figures).
Li Kuo-ling 李國玲 comp.
Ch'eng-tu: Ssu-ch'uan ta-hsuch, 1994.
3 volumes.

This draws on material not included in the Taiwan index, including recently discovered tomb inscriptions and museum collections. There are more than 14,000 new name entries and supplements to over 6,000 established entries. The arrangement of the contents is similar to that in the Taiwan index. There is an index to secondary names.

Supplementary to the above two reference works are the following two sets of indexes:

Ref (C) DS751.5 .S66 1997x Zhongguo difangzhi Songdai renwu ziliao suoyin 中國地方志宋代人物資料索引

Gazetteers--Continued)
Shen Zhihong 沈治宏 and Wang Ronggui 王蓉貴, comps.
Chengdu: Sichuan cishu chubanshe, 2002
4 vols.

The first name index is based on 302 local gazetteers in four gazetteer collections: 1) Song Yuan fangzhi congkan 宋元方志丛刊 (41 titles); 2) Tianyige cang Mingdai fangzhi xuankan 天一閣藏明代方志選刊 (107 titles); 3) Tianyige cang Mingdai fangzhi xuankan xubian 天一閣藏明代方志選刊續編 (109 titles); 4) Riben cang Zhongguo hanjian difangzhi congkan 日本藏中国罕见地方志丛刊 (45 titles)). The names were drawn from not only the biography sections but a wide variety of chapters. The entries are arranged according to the four-corner classification system. Appendices include pinyin and stroke order indexes, as well as an index of alternate names of the subjects included in the main body of the index.

The sequel covers Song personal names in 19 provincial gazetteers in three other gazetteer collections: 1) Zhongguo shengzhi huibian 中國省志彙編 (16 titles); 2) Zhongguo bianjiang congshu 中國邊疆叢書 (2 titles); 3) Changbai congshu chuji 長白叢書-初集 (1). This title's layout and editorial policies are identical to the first installment.

The above works supersede:

R2259.5/6240(C) Z3101.Y446x vol.34 LoC: Z5305.C5 H36 1959 (Orient China)	Ssu-shih-ch'i-chung Sung-tai chuan-chi tsung-ho yin-te 四十七種宋代傳記綜合引得 (Combined indices to forty-seven collections of Sung-dynasty biographies) William Hung et al. The Sung-jen chuan-chi tzu-liao so-yin does not entirely supersede the following:

RJ2259.5/3551 LoC: DS734 .S6 (Orient Japan)	Sōjin denki sakuin 宋人傳記索引 (Index to biographies of Sung figures). Sōshi teiyō hensan kyōryoku iinkai 宋史提要編纂協力委員會 Tokyo: Tōyōbunko, 1968. 274 and 7 p. McMullen #209.

which gives, on a single line, name, tzu, native place, the title of the Sung-period biographical document (usually a funerary inscription), its location, and three generations in the patriline (this last is not found in the larger index). Note further that the Sung-jen chuan-chi tzu-liao so-yin indexes biographies in Sung and Yuan local gazetteers, as does the but does not index Ming- and Ch'ing-period gazetteers, many of which include information from lost Sung-period works. The Ssu-ch'uan ta-hsueh index does do this.

Missing from the Sung-jen index also are references to funerary biographical inscriptions for monks. In addition to the supplements mentioned above researchers at Sichuan University published an index to biographical information on Song monks.

Song seng lu
宋僧录
(A Record of Song Monks)
Li Guoling 李国玲
Beijing: Xianzhuang shuju, 2001
2 vols. 1278 p.

This is a biographical index of over 6100 Song monks, indexed by Buddhist names. The compiler culled information from Buddhist texts as well as collected writings by Song and Yuan Dynasty authors, historical materials, local gazetteers, and biji.

The layout is similar to Chang Bide's index and its supplements. The main index is arranged by the four corners system. There is a name index by stroke order, and there are also indices for variant names.

For an earlier list of biographical inscriptions in the Buddhist canon, see:

宋人行第考錄
(Record of Numerical Lineage Names for Song Dynasty Persons)
Deng Zimian 鄧子勉
Beijing: Zhonghua shuju, 2001. [1], 14, 602 p.

This title indexes personal names based on numerical designations indicating a person's position in his or her lineage. The entry, giving the last name and numerical name, lists the person's main name, zi and hao, as well as a reference to the source in which the numerical name appears. There is an index of names, including the numerical names, zi and hao. This work is based on a very extensive corpus of texts (including wenji, biji, the two Song examination graduates lists, inscriptions, historical sources, poetry collections, leishu and fangzhi).

For bibliographical information on tomb inscriptions, see Dieter Kuhn and Helga Stahl's Annotated Bibliography to the Shike shiliao xinbianin III.C. In addition note the listing of recently unearthed funerary biographies:

(Sung figures are in items #587-845)

This also indexes places of publication, authors of inscriptions, and subjects.

Finally, a great deal of biographical information can be garnered from the personal-name indexes listed in Section VI below.

V.E. Biographical Series

(C) DS751.5

Song ren nianpu congkan

宋人年譜叢刊

(Chronological Biographies of Song Dynasty Persons)

Wu Hongze 吳洪澤 and Yin Bo 尹波, eds.

Chengdu: Sichuan daxue chubanshe, 2003. 12 vols.

This collection of chronological biographies (nianpu) includes 163 biographies of Song individuals published between Song times and the present. All are punctuated. For those individuals for whom multiple nianpu have been written, a limited number has been selected. The editors focused their selection on older and rare titles. The last volume (volume 12) includes an appendix with four indexes. The main name index indexes all names appearing in the full text and prefatory texts of the nianpu included in the collection. The main name index is arranged according to the four-corner system. For those unfamiliar with the four-corner system, shorter pinyin and stroke-order indexes for all last names follow. There is also a conversion table of Song dynasty years to the western calendar.

VI. Indexes and Concordances to Sung Texts

This section lists works that index more than one kind of term, for example, indexes that include personal names as well as place names and other terms. For indexes solely devoted to personal names see Section VII below, for place-name indexes see Section VIII, and so on. The listing that follows is arranged according to the nature and date of the text indexed.

The following miscellanies can be searched with a computer database on a fee-for-use basis. Fifty Sung miscellanies are classified into more than 1600 categories. Users can use either a personal name index or a subject index. Each search produces references citing the book, chüan, page, and subject classification. This database is not available in the United States at the time of publication. Inquiries regarding possible charges for searches should be directed to Professor Liu at Hang-chou University.

VI.F. COMPREHENSIVE INDEXES AND ELECTRONIC DATABASES

Comprehensive Indexes in Print

The Great Compendium of the Yongle Reign (Yongle da dian) contains many fragments of Song texts which are no longer extant in full. These fragments can be searched with the following two indexes:

(J) AE2.Y853 K56 2001x      Eiraku taiten sakuin
 永樂大典索引
 (Index to Yongle da dian)
 Kinugawa Tsuyoshi 衣川強
 Tōkyō: Hakuteisha, 2001. iii, 71, 868, 2 p.

This title indexes entries from and titles cited in Yongle da dian. References are based on the Zhonghua shuju edition. Entries are arranged by Japanese pronunciation. There is a pinyin index in front.

Ref (C) AE2.Y852 L83 1997x      Yongle da dian suoyin
 永樂大典索引
 (Index to Yongle da dian)
 Luan Guiming 樂貴明
 Beijing: Zuoja chubanshe, 1997. 16, 1236 p.

This is a name and title index organized by the four-corner system and with stroke order and pronunciation finding aids.

It includes a table of contents of remaining and indexed chapters, indicating the original sources of the chapters.

Comprehensive Electronic Databases with Major Song Collections

1) All texts written and compiled during the Song Dynasty that were included in the Siku quanshu can be searched in the electronic version of this eighteenth-century collection:

(C) AC149.S69 2002x;
 Online (Proprietary)      Wenyuange Siku quanshu dianziban [SKQS-DZB]
 文淵閣四庫全書電子版
 (The Electronic Edition of the Complete Works in the Four Treasuries--

 Hong Kong: Dizhi wenhua; Zhongwen daxue chubanshe, 1999. 183 CD-
 ROMs or online subscription.
<http://www.sikuquanshu.com>

This edition includes related titles such as Siku quanshu zongmu 四庫全書總目 and Siku quanshu jianming mulu 四庫全書簡明目錄. It also features a character dictionary and a date conversion tool.

Searches can be limited to Song titles, genres and authors. For more information on how to search, consult the following guides:

Hilde De Weerd's guide to the University of Tennessee's online version (2003)

Hilde De Weerd's guide to Harvard University's CD-ROM version (2001) MS Reader ; Word document

Zhongyang yanjiuyuan Jisuan zhongxin 中央研究院計算中心
Taipei: Zhongyang yanjiuyuan Jisuan zhongxin, 2000.
<http://www.sinica.edu.tw/~tdbproj/handy1/>

The Academia Sinica databases include a large number of Song historical and literary works, local gazetteers (fangzhi, tujing), miscellanies (biji), administrative encyclopedias (such as Ma Duanlin's Wenxian tongkao and Song Huiyao), medical, philosophical and religious texts. Searches can be conducted in individual titles or in several titles or subject categories at the same time (with the exception of Song Huiyao--see VI.B). Unlike the electronic edition of the Siku quanshu, the editions used are in most cases modern punctuated and annotated editions. The titles included and the editions used are listed in an excel sheet (2003). Updates to this sheet can be accessed at the main site listed above. Titles and editions can also be searched from the new interface (currently still under construction) <http://140.109.138.237:9080/Handy/index>
US Libraries with full access to the Academia Sinica databases include Harvard University and the University of California.

Beijing: Beijing guoxue shidai wenhua chuanbo co., 1999-
<http://www.gxbd.com/>
Also: <http://www.guoxue.com/>

This database includes a large number of Song Dynasty historical, philosophical, religious and literary works (including large anthologies of Song prose and poetry in the shi and ci genres), encyclopedias, miscellanies (biji), some gazetteers, and a selection of Qing Dynasty and twentieth-century scholarship on topics related to the Song period. This database uses modern punctuated and annotated editions. It includes, for example, modern editions of Su Shi's or Zhu Xi's collected works. This distinguishes it from similar material included in the electronic edition of the Siku quanshu described above.

For a classified list of titles included, go to <http://www.guoxue.com/cp/gjjs/gxbd.htm>

Note that this list does not mention the editions used and does not specify copyright privileges!

The company also sells thematic collections chosen from this large database in CD-ROM format. See the site listed above for more information.

4) All texts written during the Song Dynasty or Song editions of pre-Song texts included in the early twentieth-century series Sibu congan can be viewed and searched in the electronic version:

Online (Proprietary) Sibu congan dianziban [SBCK-DZB]
四部叢刊電子版
(The Electronic Edition of The Four Treasures Series)
Beijing: Wanfang shuju dianzi chubanshe, Beijing shutongwen, 2001. 24
CD-ROMs or online subscription.

<http://www.unihan.com.cn/zycp.htm>

This collection is noted for its reproductions of rare (particularly Song, Yuan and Ming Dynasty) editions of Song texts. The manual includes a table of titles already included in The Electronic Edition of the Complete Works in the Four Treasuries (see above), but contrasts the (earlier) Sibu congkan editions to the Siku quanshu edition.

The software was developed by the same company that produced The Electronic Edition of the Complete Works in the Four Treasuries. The functionality and layout is therefore very similar (see guides mentioned above).

Luo Lifang 羅麗芳

<http://www.ihp.sinica.edu.tw/~twsung/data/files/sui-song-060828.xls>

This is an excel file listing major Song primary sources and indicating whether or not they are contained in large full-text databases such as Scripta Sinica and Siku quanshu. It is particularly useful as it shows both which primary sources have and which have not been made available electronically.

This is an index to 24 titles in total, ranging from Qin though Song times. It includes the work of the two most famous Song mathematicians Qin Jiushao and Yang Hui. The terms indexed were chosen with an eye to make mathematical sources useful to economic and social historians.

VII. Atlases, Maps and Place-Name Indexes

Included here are sources for finding the locations of places within the administrative hierarchy and their geographical locations, indexes to place names in Sung-period geographies and other works, and modern geographical studies. Indexes including but not exclusive to place names will be found in Section VI with other comprehensive indexes.

VII.A. ATLASES AND MAPS

For a bibliography and chronology of Song Dynasty gazetteers and geographical works, see III.A.

VII.A.1. Historical Atlases and GIS Tools

The most authoritative maps of Sung China are in:

This work includes 44 maps for Sung, Liao, and Chin at different periods. The introduction explains the choices made. Maps contain both present-day and Sung-period locations for urban centers, administrative boundaries, and geographical features. There is a place-name index. Tan's historical maps are accessible online. The following GIS system is based on his historical maps:

VII.C. INDEXES TO SUNG-PERIOD GEOGRAPHIES

Two Northern Sung geographies have been indexed. For the earlier, the 200-chüan T'ai-p'ing huan-yü chi (980), see:

VIII.C. Incumbents in Certain Offices

The political chronologies for Northern and Southern Sung cited above record appointments to high central and provincial offices. Here lists of incumbents in particular offices are noted.

Central Government

For a systematic and comprehensive chronological list of incumbents in the major court and capital offices, see:

(C) JQ1512 .L525 2003x Songdai jingchao guan tong kao
 宋代京朝官通考
 (Comprehensive Survey of Song Dynasty Capital and Court Officials).
 Li Zhiliang 李之亮.
 Chengdu : Ba Shu shu she, 2003.
 5 vols.

This list covers councilors and vice-councilors, the Bureau of Military Affairs, the State Finance Commission, the Hanlin Academy, the Eastern Palace, the Herds Office, the Remonstrance Bureau, the Secretariat, the Chancellery, the Department of State Affairs (with the Six Boards), the Censorate, the Imperial Library, the Palace Administration, and the various Courts and Directorates (si jian) (such as the Directorate of Education).

The Appendix includes a name index organized by pinyin transliteration with finding aids by the four-corner system and by stroke number. There is also a table of variant names of all positions listed.

For membership on the Council of State for the entire Sung dynasty, including documents of appointment and some biographical and anecdotal information, see the punctuated, critical edition of Hsu Tzu-ming's 徐自明 Sung tsai-fu pien-nien lu 宋宰輔編年錄 and Lü Pang-yao's 呂邦耀 Hsu Sung tsai-fu pien-nien lu 續宋宰輔編年錄. 宋代路分长官通考 (Comprehensive Survey of Top-Ranking Route Officials during the Song Period).
Li Zhiliang 李之亮.
Chengdu : Ba Shu shu she, 2003.
3 vols.

This is a chronological overview of incumbents in senior positions in route level offices. The chronological list of incumbents is organized by office and then by route name. It covers the Song period only, not Jin or Yuan.

Prefects are listed chronologically by prefecture in the series:

(C) DS751.3 .L53 2001x Songdai junshou tongkao
宋代郡守通考
(Comprehensive Survey of Prefects during the Song Period).
Li Zhiliang 李之亮.
Chengdu : Ba Shu shu she, 2001.
10 vols.

The editor, Li Zhiliang, compiled the chronologies for each Song prefecture on the basis of local gazetteers,

The Song Dynastic History, Song Collected Statutes, private histories, administrative encyclopedias, collections of individual writers, and inscriptions. The chronologies are covered in nine volumes, based on the route to which the prefecture belonged. Prefectures lost to the Jin Empire are only covered up to the year of their annexation by Jin forces.

It includes the following titles:

VIII.D. Offices and Official Titles

For brief overviews of the Sung official system, see the studies by E. A. Kracke, Jr., and Miyazaki Ichisada and the introduction to Charles O. Hucker's Dictionary below. Comprehensive indexes that include official titles will be found in Section VI.

The system of official titles in Sung was made up of several different schedules of titles for denoting rank; these were in turn distinct from the names of the particular functions to which officials were assigned. This is further complicated by the Sung use of T'ang-period functional titles as rank titles and by several Northern Sung reforms of the schedules of titles. The best introduction to this complicated system is:

(W) DS12.A45 LoC: DS12 .A45	"Civil and Military Titles in Sung: The Chi-lu-kuan System." Umehara Kaoru. Acta Asiatica 50 (1986): 1-30.
--	---

This article includes a chart, in Chinese, giving the rank titles for civil and military officials before and after the system was revised; it also traces normal career routes through the ranks. The index to Umehara's book, a collection of studies on the Sung official system, includes the offices and titles discussed in the book.

宋代官制辞典
(A Dictionary of Song Dynasty Government)
Gong Yanming 龔延明
Beijing: Zhonghua shuju, 1997. 49, 88, 800 p.

See IX.A.2 for a further description.

The most comprehensive dictionary in a European language, listing 4410 with translations into French, references to sources (primarily the "Treatise on the Bureaucracy" of the Sung shih), and some indication of where an office was located within the bureaucracy, is:

(W) JQ1512.Z1 C454      Les fonctionnaires des Song: Index des titres

Saeki Tomi's indexes to various treatises of the Sung History, noted in Section VI above, also index official titles. In particular note the index to the "Treatise on Bureaucracy":

This dictionary is more inclusive than Sung Yuan yü-yen tz'u-tien. It covers, for example, yulu, historical sources, biji, Buddhist sources. More controversially, it also cites from later sources quoting Song usage. The Song volume is part of a series of three, with two other volumes on Tang-Wudai language by Jiang Jiansheng and Yuan language by Li Chongxing.

We note here the completion of the most extensive and authoritative dictionary of written Chinese:

Ref(C) PL1420.H3494 1986      Han-yü ta-tz'u-tien
 漢語大辭典
 (Great dictionary of the Chinese language).
 Hong Kong: San-lien shu-chü, 1986-1994. 12 & 1 vols.

For vernacular terms after the late T'ang, see:

5175/0203      Chin-tai Han-yü tz'u-tien
 LoC: PL1420 .C516 1992 China      近代漢語辭典
 (Dictionary of early-modern and modern Chinese language).
 Kao Wen-ta 高文達 general comp.
 Peking: Hsin-hua shu-tien, 1992. 1034 p.

Includes definitions, examples of usages, variations, and related items.

IX.A.2. Institutional Terms and Usage

For institutional terms and their usage, the most comprehensive modern historical dictionary is:

(C) JQ1512.Z1 K864 1997      Songdai guanzhi cidian
 宋代官制辭典
 (A Dictionary of Song Dynasty Government)
 Gong Yanming 龔延明
 Beijing: Zhonghua shuju, 1997. 49, 88, 800 p.

This dictionary covers official titles (11000 entries) and administrative jargon (600 entries). It is organized according to the bureaucratic hierarchy. There is a comprehensive index in the back. A survey of the Song administration (pp. 1-49) comes in front. The tables are listed on p. 88. Appendices include: 1) a bibliography of sources; 2) indexes by stroke order for each of the two parts of the dictionary.

Also useful, but less complete is:

R2457/2325(5)      Chung-kuo li-shih ta-tz'u-tien: Sung shih
 中國歷史大辭典：宋史
 (Great dictionary of Chinese history: Sung history).
 Teng Kuang-ming 鄧廣銘 and Ch'eng Ying-liu 程應鏐 ed.
 Shanghai: Shang-hai tz'u-shu ch'u-pan-she, 1984. 71, 543 p.

For terms pertaining to Chinese social and economic history, but not exclusively to the Sung period, see:

(J) HC427.H67 1966x      Chūgoku shakai keizai shi goi
 LoC: H49 .H66 (Orien Japan)      中國社會經濟史語彙
 (Vocabulary for Chinese social and economic history).
 Hoshi Ayao 星斌夫
 2 vols. Tokyo: Tōyōbunko, 1966 and 1975. 425 and 168 p.

Volume 2 is a supplement to the first volume. Both are organized by Japanese pronunciation and include a stroke-count index.

Also for terms pertaining to Chinese economic history, but not exclusively to the Sung period, see:

4352/4824      Chung-kuo ching-chi-shih tz'u-tien
 中國經濟史辭典
 (Dictionary of Chinese economic history).
 Chao Te-hsin 趙德馨 comp.
 Wuhan: Hu-pei tz'u-shu ch'u-pan-she, 1990. 948p.

This includes 5470 historical items. There is a classified index by period and then by subject. There is a stroke-count index. For Sung economic history, see the section by Ko Chin-fang 葛金芳 and Ku Jung 顧容, pp. 330-431.

For a variety of terms relevant to Wang An-shih's New Policies regime, see the glossary in:
